

From London comes an account of the introduction of an American mechanical invention into the very heart of the government of Great Britain—the House of Commons—an account which fills you with pride in our tradition for mechanical genius.

The Linotype Matrix is a trade journal published in London by Linotype and Machinery, Ltd., British outlet for the Mercantile Linotype company of Brooklyn, U. S. A. Says the Matrix:

"What has been described as the most far-reaching development in rapid typesetting methods since the introduction of mechanical composition—the Teletypesetter—has been installed by the (London) Times newspaper to enable it to print an up-to-the-minute report of parliamentary proceedings in successive editions.

"The installation was inaugurated on 5th June by the Speaker of the House of Commons, Colonel Clifton Brown, who was received in the press gallery by Colonel J. J. Austin, chairman of the Times Publishing company.

"The Teletypesetter system is really a method of remote Linotype operating and consists of a perforator, distributor-sender, reperforator, and special Linotype keyboard attachment. The perforators can be positioned anywhere outside the actual printing office—in this particular instance in a room in the House of Commons, and connected with the printing House Square by an ordinary telephone line."

This is from London, England in the year 1951.

But all the machines enumerated above are to be seen in the Hope Star plant, and over my desk hangs a framed reprint of a page advertisement announcing the coming of Teletypesetter to Hope. The date, June 19, 1942—nine years before this event in London.

We had preserved a full-page matrix of this historic page, and just the other day the Chicago manufacturers of Teletype and Teletypesetter called for it to have reprints struck for circulation around the world.

The Southwest Arkansas Teletypesetter Circuit was the first full-fledged automatic type-setting circuit set up in all America. It was established by my partner, C. E. Palmer, Ray Kimball, then publisher at Magnolia and DeQueen, and my publisher at DeQueen and Stuttgart, and myself. It served four cities originally, the wire running out of Hot Springs—first Teletypesetter city in Arkansas—to Hope, Magnolia, El Dorado, and Camden. Now there are eight cities, the other four being Texarkana, DeQueen, Stuttgart, and Helena—with a ninth, Russellville, soon to be added.

And the Teletypesetter circuit idea which originated in our corner of America now serves the reading public in many states. It has become the established form for the state circuits of the Associated Press, United Press, and International News Service — the Arkansas AP wire being scheduled to switch over to the automatic system next spring.

Strike Cuts Milk Supply to New York

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—Almost all milk supplies were cut off from 12,000,000 consumers in the three-state metropolitan area today by a strike of 15,000 drivers and dairy plant workers.

How for settlement rested largely on the imminent probability of an office of price stabilization or order raising retail milk prices. This might place the employers in a position to satisfy the strikers' pay demands.

Marathon negotiations, which started yesterday noon, continued almost continuously through the night and early today in an effort to settle the dispute.

Mediators representing the federal government, New York state, New Jersey, Connecticut, and New York City guided the talks.

Latest word on the course of the negotiations was a mediator's statement last night that "definite progress" was being made.

The strike, which began at 4 p. m. (EST) yesterday, was called by five locals of the AFL International Brotherhood of Teamsters in a move to enforce a demand for a 20 per cent wage increase.

The walkout hit some 200 companies serving New York City, Long Island suburban Westchester County, N. Y.; eight counties in northern New Jersey and parts of two more, and the southwestern corner of Connecticut.

Deliveries to plants from New York's milkshed started to halt as soon as the strike started upon expiration of a company-union contract.

Many of the milkshed farmers, who normally ship $500,000 worth of milk daily into the New York market were expected to send their Continued on Page Two

VFW Post Burns Mortgage on Its Building

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Indies of its Auxiliary and special guests, some 200 in all, burned the mortgage on the organization's building last night and received awards for service rendered to this community.

It was in October 1947 that a handful of VFW members personally signed a note which enabled the group to purchase the home for $6,250. The final payment was made last night three years before it was due — a goal that took fine cooperation and hard work from every member. Last night's ceremony bore the fruit of that work.

Principal speaker of the banquet was Wayne Richards, Jr., Arkansas City, Kansas, national junior vice commander of the VFW.

John A. Harper, State Commander of VFW

Commander Richards praised the 152-member post for its achievement and outlined the organization's national legislative program. In detail he explained how membership fees were spent in carrying out the programs on a national scale, all designed to benefit the entire organization and the nation.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Richards was awarded a medal with his name engraved on it — a gift of the Ramsey-Cargile Post.

John A. Harper, state commander presented three awards to the local post. The first, a check for $75, was given to Mrs. Orville Taylor, Ladies Auxiliary head, for its part in community service work.

A check for $100 was given to Post Commander Denver Dickinson as an award to the organization for being judged winner of a community service contest in Arkansas.

The third award presented by Mr. Harper was a large plaque, given jointly to the VFW and Auxiliary, for winning first prize in the national community service contest.

Past-Commander Syvelle Burke told how 13-members met October 9, 1945 at Hotel Barlow and organized the post, electing David Brumfield, its first Commander. The post continued to grow until finally, late in 1947, it was decided to purchase the present building for a meeting and recreational hall.

He related how a few members signed a note making the purchase possible and of the hard work involved in making payments. Perhaps the projects contributing most to the building fund were the booth at the Livestock Show, the scrap paper drives and weekly banquets at Fair pay which has attracted more than 100,000 persons.

Sid McMath, official of the First National Bank which held a mortgage on the building, highly praised the courage of the group for undertaking the building project and burned the mortgage.

Special guests included Mrs. Cargile and son, Edgar Cargile, mother and brother of Nolen (Tootsie) Cargile in whose memory the post name is co-shared. The parents of Percy Ramsey, who also gave his life in battle, were unable to be present.

Other special guests were Milton Dillard, American Legion Commander, Howard Warner, Jr., state vice-commander, Sam Menton, state adjutant general, Hugh Ladd, department service officer, Dr. E. S. Fullerton, Mrs. Mac Rosenbaum, national council member, Mrs. Dewey Grady, Ruby Mae Colten of the Lewisville auxiliary, Bill Malone, Booneville commander, Freeman Miss, Logan county service officer, Dr. W. C. Weber, District 10 commander of Magnolia and the post commander of Magnolia, and Mrs. Harper.

The chicken dinner was served by the Hopewell Home Demonstration Club. Music during the dinner was played by Mrs. Alva Reynolds and Mrs. Haskell Jones sang several songs.

Fred Grisham served as master of ceremonies.

Liquor Deaths Climb to 33 in Georgia

Atlanta, Oct. 25—(AP)—A former convict was arrested on a manslaughter charge today in the deaths of 33 persons who drank a deadly moonshine mixture of wood alcohol and water.

Solicitor General (Prosecutor) Paul Webb announced that John R. Hardy, a 360-pound Atlantan whose FBI record shows several convictions of liquor law violations, was taken into custody at an Atlanta hospital on a warrant issued last night.

Hardy went to the hospital for treatment of injuries he said were suffered in a car accident near Athens, Ga., yesterday.

Five persons died in hospitals in and around Atlanta during the night to bring the death toll to 33. Most were Negroes.

Police charge that Hardy brought the illegal liquor into Atlanta and pressed a hunt for another white man accused of mixing the deadly brew.

4-H Members Join '2-Bale Cotton Club'

"Hempstead County 4-Hers have another activity in which they can now take part," Oliver L. Adams, County Agent, has announced. It is the "Two-Bale Cotton Club."

This club, which closely resembles the "100-Bushel Corn Club," will start issuing "Two-Bale Club" certificates upon completion of this year's crop.

Adams said that some people may think this is an almost impossible task, but he reminded them that farmers already have come from one-half bale per acre up to a bale per acre. Also, they have increased production from 25 bushels of corn to the acre to a hundred bushels or better per acre.

The County Agent went on to say that by using the right land, proper fertilization and rotation, and by using adapted varieties, this would not be such a hard thing to do.

Rules for becoming a member of this club are few. They are as follows:

1. Limited to 4-H Club members only.
2. Must have at least one acre of cotton to be eligible.
3. Must grow a variety of cotton adapted to your locality.
4. Yield must be checked and certified by two local neighbors.
5. Certificates stating that you have produced two bales per acre will be awarded upon this certification.

The County Agent urged all 4-Hers who are interested to contact him at his office.

Buffer Zone to Be Aired; Lull in Korea Fighting

By The Associated Press

In the Korean truce talks, Allied and Communist sub-committees will continue their discussion tonight about a buffer zone for Korea.

The UN has proposed that both the Communists and the Allies give up a bit of territory — and that the line roughly follow the fighting front.

It's a fairly quiet day on the Korean battle front.

But in the air, Allied warplanes have hit the North Korean rail system, destroying nine locomotives and 99 railroad cars.

U. S. Workers to Receive Pay Increases

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP)—Some 1,100,000 federal "white collar" workers and 500,000 postal employees will receive pay raises retroactive to last July 1.

Legislation signed yesterday by President Truman increases the annual pay of most white collar workers by $300 to $800, that of postal workers by $400 to $600. This will add an estimated $672,000,000 a year to the costs of the federal payroll.

The pay boost for classified federal workers under civil service is 10 per cent. But those who make less than $3,000 a year will get $300 and those paid more than $8,000 will get a flat $800.

Rank and file postal workers will get a raise of at least $400. Most postmasters, supervisors will get $800.

Total payments under the retroactive features of the two bills will amount to $215,000,000.

Because the measures were signed before the Nov. 1 effective date of the new tax law, the lump sum retroactive wage payments will not be subject to the higher income tax rates.

The legislation also changes the annual leave or vacation allowances of government workers. It provides for 13 days of vacation for employees with service up to three years, 20 days for those with from three to 15 years service, and 25 days for those with more than 15 years.

Congress to Look Into Path of Love - What a Great Road Paving Job That Would Be!

By HAL BOYLE

New York, Oct. 25 (AP)—Cupid must be laughing fit to split his sides at the United States government.

It has set out to solve the timeless mysteries of love and marriage—on an appropriation of $12,000,000.

The first session of the 82nd congress appropriated some $95,000,000,000. It conducted more than 100 separate inquiries into matters ranging from how milk costs get into the White House to the unemployment problems of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

But when Washington had a chance to make a real investigation of benefit to all — how people fall in love, and what happens then?—it pulled the purse strings tight.

It allotted a miserly $12,000,000 to Prof. Robert F. Winch, a North-western University sociologist, to finance an 18-month study into what love is, and to tabulate "the gratifications and frustrations" of marriage today.

It strikes me how such a sum is a colossal insult to the common man, and certainly a misguided gesture toward economy in government.

Why Tommy Manville and many other millionaires have probably spent more than $12,000 on a love problem in a single weekend—and never come up with a satisfactory answer. Hollywood has budgeted movie kisses that cost more than $12,000 to screen.

Prof. Winch's study is being conducted under the auspices of the national institute of mental health. But I will wager that for $12,000 he will be unable to give a complete picture of the hearts fractured by puppy love in any one kindergarten classroom, let alone explore the intricacies of adult married love.

This is no criticism of the professor, who is 40, has a wife, and has probably spent more than $12,000 charting his own marital voyage. But such a small sum — it is like giving a child a penny and telling him to erect another Empire State building.

To define and understand love—to achieve happy wedlock—these are tremendous tasks. They have challenged poets and warriors, cobblers and kings, husbands and wives for centuries.

If the government now is going to probe into such affairs, it

Welfare Coup Termed Victory for Taxpayer

Indianapolis, Oct. 25 (AP)—Indiana's junior U. S. senator calls his coup, which makes possible the opening of welfare rolls to public inspection "the people's greatest victory over federal bureaucracy in 20 years."

Sen. William E. Jenner is a Republican with a sharp tongue when he starts on the subject of "federal bureaucracy." It was he who maneuvered into the big tax bill a rider giving states the right to let the public look at lists of persons on public welfare.

"This is the first time the New Deal has been given a good swift kick in the teeth," Jenner said in an interview.

The bureaucrats fought it until hell wouldn't have it, but they were repulsed in what was primarily a battle of States' Rights. It marked the first time in 20 years that the trend toward big government in the United States had been reversed.

"It was the first victory in bringing government back to the people from Washington, where it has been, not elected by the people, but by a dictator and tell the people what to do."

The Jenner rider got Indiana out of a dilemma created when another native Hoosier, Oscar Ewing, federal security administrator, lopped off the federal aid that had been going to the state in meeting public welfare expense.

Ewing did so on the ground that a law passed by the 1951 Indiana legislature conflicted with the federal social security law banning publicizing of welfare rolls.

With Indiana cut off from $20,000,000 annually in federal aid, Democratic Governor Henry F. Schricker called the legislature into special session to deal with the problem.

The session opened Sept. 21 and it is still continuing, although the legislators admit welfare is pretty much of a moot question since Jenner made his fast play.

The governor says he is "entirely satisfied with the way things turned out."

"I have never had any objection to making the welfare rolls public," said Schricker. "As far as I am concerned they can be tacked on the courthouse door."

"My position has been that the problem should be corrected by congressional action. My concern has been to get the money back."

"It is unfair to call on the taxpayers of Indiana to submit to double taxation for welfare purposes. This would be the effect of the state paying the entire welfare cost, since we have to continue to pay federal taxes."

"As long as the federal social security law required that welfare information be kept confidential, I felt Indiana should obey the law. Now, by congressional action, this is no longer necessary and the state will get the federal money to which it is entitled."

Spring Hill Youth Injured in Motorcycle Wreck

Floyd Nations, 17-year-old Spring Hill boy, was released from Julia Chester Hospital today, following treatment of injuries suffered in a motorcycle accident Tuesday night, 2 miles out on the Spring Hill road. Young Nations told his family that lights from an approaching auto blinded him and he lost control of the motorcycle when it hit mud and gravel after passing the auto.

He was taken to Julia Chester Hospital where it required 13 stitches to close a cut on his leg. He also lost a tooth and sustained a head injury.

Heavy Voting as British Go to Polls

London, Oct. 25 (AP)—An unprecedented surge of voting during the first six hours of the British general election today cooled some of the pre-election optimism in the Conservative party, one of its officials said.

Estimates of the expected Tory majority "have been scaled down," he added.

Survey reports from virtually every major area of the country reached Conservative headquarters shortly after noon.

The officials said the number of people who cast ballots between 7 and 9 a. m. was "much greater than last time." The majority of these early voters would be Socialist government supporters, balloting before they went to factories and industrial plants.

"Every indication is that they (the Socialists) have succeeded in getting out a big vote," the official said.

Between 9 a. m. and noon, the source said, the polling appeared to be running two per cent greater than in the 1950 election. Conservatives said they were confident that these ballots were "at least evenly divided, if not favorable to us."

Both parties had observers at the polling places in strategic districts keeping unofficial counts of the voting. The figures and estimates came from a compilation of their reports.

Winston Churchill announced this afternoon he has filed suit for libel against the London Daily Mirror. "The exact nature of the libel was not stated."

"The weather, which had been foggy and cold when the polls opened at 7 a. m., turned fine during the morning. In London, the sun shone brilliantly in an almost cloudless sky."

Some people waited in the gray, clammy dawn to cast their ballots as soon as the polls opened. Workmen stopped on their way to factories, mingling with others coming home from all-night shifts.

Both Conservatives and Socialists sent fleets of automobiles through the streets to carry voters who were short of time or unable to find other transportation.

Election officials in many districts throughout London and the large cities including Cardiff, Leeds and Bristol, reported "very heavy voting during the morning."

Even after the polls opened, teams from both parties continued to go from house to house, asking people if they had voted and offering transportation to the polls.

From Buckingham palace came word that King George VI, still recuperating from a major leg operation, will remain awake until midnight tonight to get election results. His doctors have sanctioned the late hour for this occasion.

Election-recording boards were set up in Piccadilly Circus and other gathering points by London newspapers.

As the polls opened, both major parties issued confident statements. Surveys ended with the Conservatives still on top in graphs and predicting victory. Public opinion charts, but with the lead over labor greatly narrowed in the final hours.

Both parties were confident of a victory for the liberal vote. The polls—Britain's third vote—number some 2,000,000 voters, but put up candidates in only a few districts.

Final messages from Churchill and Prime Minister Aneurin Bevan tersely reprised the issues. These were:

1. Whether to continue the Socialist experiment in state control over business and industry, whether to restore the Conservatives and return as far as possible to a system devoted to private enterprise.

2. Whether to bring back Churchill, on whom the Socialists have attempted to pin the label "war-monger" and who, they were easily could lead to war.

Bishop Favors Training Negroes

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 25 (AP) — The Rt. Rev. R. Bland Mitchell, Episcopal bishop of Arkansas and chancellor of the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., says both students and faculty believe that Negroes should be trained in the university's theological school.

The bishop, here for a meeting of the synod of the seventh province of the Episcopal church, was commenting on a recommendation of the synod of the fourth province in Birmingham, Ala., that Negroes be admitted to the school.

Bishop Mitchell said, however, that he doubted that Negroes would be admitted to the school soon. He said the school was overcrowded and white students were waiting a year or more for admission.

The consensus of opinion of students and faculty members of both Sewanee and Virginia Theological School has been that Negro students would be received by them with favor as beneficiaries of Christian people.

"One of the crying needs of the Episcopal church in the south is an adequate supply of well-trained Negro clergy. And the best place to train them this work is in the south."

He went on to point out that facilities built for classes of 30 men were being used by 61 students.

U. S. Airforce Now in France

During World War Two she defied the Germans by hanging the Portuguese Republic flag from the window of her home. She was driven from her chateau in 1940 but later was allowed to return.

DOROTHY DIX Safeguard Your Reputation

Dear Miss Dix: Should a younger brother be penalized because other boys in the family have earned poor reputations by drinking heavily and keeping the wrong company? I am 16 and very fond of a boy slightly older who is very nice, considerate and every inch a gentleman. He has two brothers who are just the opposite. Consequently, no one respects the older boys and my friend, Keith, is grouped with them in everyone's mind. I should hate to lose my own good name by going with Keith, but still I like him very much and do feel he should have a chance to prove he is different. I go with other boys, too, but he is the one I like most.

J. L. E. Answer: You are young to form an opinion on so weighty a matter as a boy's reputation; suppose you talk this matter over with your mother, or some other adult who has your confidence.

He Can Earn Respect Since Keith is so different from his brothers, most assuredly he should be judged on his own merit, and though it might be harder for him to convince people of his good intentions, it is not impossible. With the exception of a few malicious gossipers, you'll find most people inclined to see the best in others, and if Keith really keeps his character above reproach, he'll earn the respect of his neighbors.

You are so right in safeguarding your own reputation. If, after due consideration and consultation, you feel Keith really is worthy of your regard, go out with him. But make sure you keep good hours, choose your mutual companions carefully, and stay away from questionable places of amusement. If Keith shows discretion in the dates he offers, and you conduct yourselves in proper fashion, both reputations will be enhanced.

Dear Miss Dix: For the past two years since I was 16, I have been going with Larry, whom I have known since childhood. I loved him very much, but he constantly disappointed me, breaking dates, going away for week-ends without giving me a chance to make my own plans and pursuing hobbies which he was more interested in than I was in mine. We had many arguments, and finally broke up. Then I met another boy, Ray who is wonderfully considerate and shares the same hobbies and interests as I do. So we became engaged. I love him very much but not with the ardent love I had for Larry. Do you think I should marry him?

T.T. Answer: The ardor of first love can never be recaptured, the man who first wins a woman's heart leaves an imprint upon it that nothing ever removes, even though he turns out to be worthless. So no matter how much you love your fiancé, don't ever expect to forget Larry entirely. Larry certainly does not have the material from which a good husband is made, and you were right to break off with him. Your fiancé's consideration and congeniality do indicate a potentially fine husband. You and you alone can tell which one you will be happier with—dashing, selfish Larry, or steady, thoughtful Ray. You'll be miserable with Larry, happy with Ray, provided you can remove the aura of romance from Larry's head. Don't marry at all until your position in regard to both men is absolutely clear. At 18 you have plenty of time to make up your mind. Don't run the risk of a bad marriage.

Dear Miss Dix: I am heartbroken over my boy friend's neglect. He lives sixteen miles from me and though he can't drive a car, I think he might at least write. I am 15, he is a year older, and I know he likes me.

L.U.Y.H. Answer: A 16-year-old boy with a penchant for letter writing is a rarity indeed. At that age, boys shun pen and ink much as they avoided soap and water six years earlier. You are making entirely too much of your blighted romance. Instead of moaning over an inaccessible boy, why not go out with someone closer to home? If your absent beau really cares for you, eventually he will write or come calling. Until then, cheer up and stop moping! (Released by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Strike Against Brewery Is Ended Today

St. Louis, Oct. 25 (AP) — A labor dispute that disrupted production and paralyzed the vast Anheuser-Busch brewery here for 24 days was settled early today.

Announcement of the settlement was made jointly by representatives of the company and local 187 of the CIO Beer Bottlers union.

The plant, spreading over the equivalent of 72 city blocks, normally turns out 5,500,000 bottles and cans of beer daily.

No details were announced pending ratification by union members at a special meeting set for 3 p. m. (EST) today.

There was no immediate indication of how the settlement will affect shut-downs at three other St. Louis breweries: The Falstaff, Hyde Park and Grassiebeck. Brothers Breweries also have been idle, pinching the regular flow of beer to a relative few drops.

Lonsdale Election Problem Settled

Hot Springs, Oct. 25 (AP) — The Gar land County election commission has solved an election problem at nearby Lonsdale, believed to be the smallest incorporated town in the United States.

There are 12 candidates for city offices in the Nov. 6 general election, and only 13 poll tax receipt holders. Who could be judges and who could be clerks? The commission appointed judges and clerks from Hot Springs.

Among workers in the basement of the company, said J. L. E. president, was a decision to be made by management. He added there was no agreement to suggest job locations were a union function.

The company charged a union-promoted slowdown forced the firm to close its plant, one of the largest beer producing units in the world.

Originally described as a "trivial matter" by both union and management, the dispute eventually cost 5,000 workers and the loss of labor and management was set at millions of dollars.

A week ago the AFL Teamsters union began picketing the other three breweries, halting production there. The teamsters are trying to organize non-union office workers.

The preparedness subcommittee, headed by Senator Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.) was set up shortly after fighting broke out in Korea to keep an eye on the mobilization program. This was its 31st report; others have dealt with a wide variety of mobilization problems.

In general, the latest report praised the food, clothing supplies, instruction, medical care, housing and recreation facilities at the six training centers.

But in addition to reporting low morale at the three marine bases, the subcommittee was critical of what it called a "lack of cost consciousness" among officers at the six centers.

This factor "involves waste — waste in manpower and waste in money — and at this critical juncture the nation can afford neither," the subcommittee said.

As an example of low morale and waste of manpower, the report cited a staff sergeant, an inactive reservist recalled to duty, whose full time job at El Toro is to issue equipment at a golf course.

"It would be impossible to continue this team that he was really needed and that there was sufficient cause to recall him to active duty," the report said.

The senators recommended that the navy include in its fitness reports for officers a new category, "cost consciousness."

"An important factor in the determination of an officer's efficiency should be his demonstrated ability to conserve men, money and materials," the report said.

The subcommittee also ripped payment of hazardous duty premiums at New London to administrative personnel who do not actually work on live aboard submarines. This extra pay amounts to 30 or 40 per cent of base salary.

However, the senators said the navy had moved promptly to stop this. Included in the report was a memo from Admiral W. M. Fechteler, chief of naval operations, saying submarine pay had been ended for personnel who do not get to sea in submarines a substantial number of days a month. The action was taken after subcommittee investigators visited the base.

Marines Have Low Morale, Group Finds

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP) — A senate armed services subcommittee report today it had found dissatisfaction and low morale among marines, particularly recently recalled reservists, at three bases.

This was discouraging in view of the long history of high morale and esprit de corps of the marines," the group said. There was no immediate comment from the marine corps.

The three bases are El Toro and Camp Pendleton in California and Camp Lejeune in North Carolina. The subcommittee criticized the navy and marine corps for what it called lax use of men and money, in a report which also covered conditions at the Marine Corps Air Station, Quantico, Va., the navy's amphibious base at Little Creek near Norfolk, Va., and the navy's submarine base, New London, Conn.

milk to local plants for conversion into cheese, ice cream and other products.

The strike's impact on consumers was felt starting at 2 a. m. (EST) today when milk trucks failed to roll.

The union continued deliveries to hospitals, schools, military installations, convents and certain other institutions.

Residents of the city — already plagued by an eleven-day-old dock strike — were expected to clean the remaining milk from store shelves early today. Some dairy plants were making retail sales to individual consumers from slim supplies.

The milk men's union, which says the workers have not had a pay increase in three years, lists weekly salaries as $64.50 for plant workers and $64 a week plus commissions for drivers. They work a 40-hour week. An employer spokesman said the drivers average $78 a week, and some earn up to $100.

Americans Leave for UN Assembly Meet

Washington, Oct. 25 (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson and most of an 81 member American delegation leave today for the United Nations general assembly session opening in Paris Nov. 6.

Most of the U. S. delegation is due to sail from New York at 4 p. m. (EST) on the liner America.

Despite the longshoremen's strike the U. S. lines told the state department the America would sail as scheduled (per 17, Staten Island). Acheson himself planned to go to New York by train at 10 a.m.

Included in the group of advisers and aides announced last night by the state department was R. Gordon Arneson, special adviser to Acheson on atomic affairs. His presence reflects the expectations of U. S. officials that Russia will renew pressure at Paris for acceptance of Moscow's plan for international atomic control. The U. N. has overwhelmingly turned down this plan in the past.

Beginning with the acknowledgment by Premier Stalin on Oct. 6 that Russia had exploded an atomic bomb, Moscow has been waging a new propaganda campaign for outlawing atomic warfare of Soviet terms.

Without reference to Russia's rejection of the U. N. proposal for on-the-spot inspection to see that no nation makes bombs in secret, Moscow has been stressing a contention that Russia wants to outlaw atomic weapons and that the U. S. refuses to go along.

Newspaper Is Supporting Eisenhower

New York, Oct. 23 (AP) — The New York Herald Tribune is supporting Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Republican nomination for president in 1952.

Mr. Gordon Reed, president of the newspaper, made the announcement last night to the audience of the Herald Tribune forum after the meeting itself was over.

"On Thursday, front page, editorial, endorsing the general appeared in Paris and New York editions of the newspaper, which has been a self politically independent Republican."

"Eisenhower, the paper said, is the man for the Republican party. 'You by now for nearly 20 years,' it continued, 'A Democratic administration has underscored the need for a new sense of purpose, leadership in the country, a fresh standard of integrity in government.'"

"During this long period in the opposition, Republican leaders have spoken with many voices. The time has come when they can speak with one voice united behind a man who both in domestic and foreign policy stands for the basic convictions of a vast majority of citizens."

"In addition to being a military leader, the paper said, Eisenhower has shown 'the vision of the statesman, the skill of the diplomat, the supreme organizing talents of the administrator, and the humane sympathies of the representative of the people.'"

Quoted the General "Republican by temper and disposition."

"He is a Republican by every vocal of faith and solemn declaration of purpose," the paper added.

"The country needs leadership, the newspaper said, and 'for such leadership, political and moral, Dwight D. Eisenhower is needed.'"

"This newspaper affirms its faith in the man. It asks from him no word or promise at this time; it has received none."

However, it said some "see in the drawing to a close of his present assignment in Europe the occasion for a new call to effort and to service."

"And they believe that this call will not go unanswered."

The newspaper supported Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the Republican nomination in 1948.

Eisenhower was unavailable for comment. Nor was any further comment from supreme headquarters of Allied powers in Europe, his command.

(For James Marlow)

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP) — Every television fan would do well to get acquainted with the ultra high frequencies, commonly known in the industry as "UHF."

Within the next few years, the majority of new television stations will be on UHF channels.

And Chairman Wayne Coy of the federal communications commission thinks it would be a good idea for all of TV to shift over to UHF, sometime in the far distant future.

If this should be done, and it may never be done, the public would be given at least a ten-year notice of the plan.

"The UHF is the broad, unused spot in the broadcasting spectrum where FCC is getting ready to carve out 70 new TV channels."

These are to be added to the present 12 channels in the so-called "very high frequencies" (VHF) and will give the country a total of 82 channels. "This will make possible about 2,000 U.S. stations. Only 100 now are in operation."

Both government and the broadcasting industry are anxious to get one thing over to the general public: "Don't let the introduction of UHF into television scare you."

"They base that advice on these things: 1. UHF provides a high-quality picture, superior to the VHF product in some places which cause a lot of man-made interference, such as that from faulty electrical machines."

2. UHF will be worked into the system on a gradual basis.

3. The mixing of UHF and VHF broadcasting will not make present sets obsolete.

About 12,000,000 of the 12,000,000 TV sets now in use were built exclusively for VHF channel reception. Starting early this year, some set makers have been building into their receivers an extra gadget to provide for quick and inexpensive addition of UHF tuning.

This addition involves pulling out an unneeded VHF channel slot and substituting the desired UHF channel. Trade sources estimate the job will cost "under $10."

For the straight VHF sets now in the hands of the public, the manufacturers have perfected an "extension, box-like attachment which can be plugged into the set. That kind of converter will cost between $15 and $20 for a single UHF channel, between $40 and $60 for multiple UHF tuning."

The manufacturers plan to keep right on making straight VHF sets, since many communities will have VHF service only for many years to come. In addition, a combination VHF-UHF receiver, costing slightly more, is to be introduced. Eventually, there may be a straight UHF set. That depends on how many places go in for exclusive UHF operations.

Bell Likes Camden Over the Bobcats

By CARL BELL

Little Rock, Oct. 23 (AP) — At first glance your favorite football favorite, the Arkansas State Bobcats, appears to be a good deal out of proportion. His expanded head barely seems to fit his slight frame.

But the big head belonged, all right. After all, he picked Arkansas to upset Texas and now has an accuracy rating of 78 per cent — 201 right, 53 wrong and 10 ties.

As for this week's Arkansas over Santa Clara. The Razorbacks may have a letdown, but to many the Bobcats after beating Stanford on such even terms. And it's the opinion here that Otis Douglas' boys are beginning to master his pig system.

Henderson over Ozarks. The rebounding Bobcats will leave South State as the only unbeaten team in the AR.

Southern State over McNeese. Eugene Smith's Mulderites also must win to make the above statement stand and they have the stuff to do it.

Arkansas Tech over Omicron. The Tigers can't seem to win for getting shellacked; the Techmen are improving week by week.

Arkansas A & M over State Teachers. Bill Wever's Coach Jim Benton is a master at fighting out pass patterns and Quarterback Dave Anderson is the same at throwing the pigskin.

Little Rock JC over Hendrix. Ivan Grove's highspirited Hendrix amateurs are good for a big surprise somewhere along the line and this could be it, but the dope says JC.

Arkansas State over Cory Field. Elmer Smith's Corny Field team is a 7 formation wizard, and this year he really has the material to carry out his strategy.

Texas A & M over Baylor. We were all set to pick Baylor to "upset" the Aggies, and then the party of the second part gets upset by TCU. Now the Aggies will catch a bunch of angry Aggies, and that's not good for Baylor.

Texas over Rice. Jess Neely, as usual, is doing wonders developing his Owls, a team selected for the Southwest conference cellar. But psychology is in favor of the Longhorns since they were beaten last week and Rice upended SMU. Texas has the best line and best running attack but must find a way to stop Bill Howton's pass receiving.

Southern California over Texas Christian. The Frogs are the most unpredictable member of the unpredictable Southwest conference this season, however. This is a meeting between two of the teams that sprang the biggest surprise in the nation last week — beating California and A & M.

North Little Rock over Pine Bluff. A tangle that the home field will decide.

Little Rock over El Dorado. Mountainous, isn't it?

The others:
Fort Smith over Springdale, Hot Springs over Mulvren, Silvan Springs over Alma, Bentonville over Hartselle, Harrison over Rogers, Newport over Prangdell, Pocahontas over Hald Knob, McCrory over Batesville, Jonesboro over Catholic High, Piggott over Marked Tree, Whitehaven, Tenn., over Osceola, Wilson over West Memphis, Subino over Booneville, Mena over Mansfield, Clarksville over Atkins, Lakeside over Amity.

Paris over St. Anne's of Fort Smith, Benton over Morrilton, Bauxite over Gidson, Magnet Cove over Lemoke, Joplin, Mo., over Van Buren, Oklahoma Deaf School over Arkansas Deaf School, Drinkley over Chirenden, Martanna over De Witt, Helena over Stuttgart, Wynne over Earle, Camden over Hope, Texarkana over Harborton, Crosson over Derwatt, Nashville over Dicks, Monticello over Warren, Metheee over Lake Village.

Halfway Mark for College Football

New York, Oct. 23 (AP) — The halfway point in the college football season and the first of the season's stock taking.

Sports writers and editors who voted in the Associated Press poll for the season's best players, coaches, teams, etc., have been busy for the past few days. The Associated Press poll for the season's best players, coaches, teams, etc., have been busy for the past few days.

It took half the season, but the two power teams, Texas and Arkansas, both have a good chance of finishing that way.

The Yale and Princeton teams, which were the only two teams to win their first game, are now in a position to win the championship.

Cigarette Dealers Must Take Inventory

Little Rock, Oct. 23 (AP) — Arkansas cigarette dealers will be required to take inventory of their stock as of Nov. 1 in preparation for the federal government's tax increase.

This was announced here yesterday by acting collector of Internal Revenue Olin S. Godwin.

The revenue act of 1951, approved before adjournment of Congress last week, imposes an additional cent a package federal tax on cigarettes.

The law goes into effect Nov. 1, dooming to Camden's smokers at Godwin and cigarette dealers to obtain information as to their equipment under the law by writing his office in the federal building, Little Rock.

Camden, Hope 'B' Teams Play Here Tonight

While the Bobcats went through light drills today preparing for a battle with Camden, here Friday night, two other Hope teams clear the deck for action tonight.

Hope's "B" team, throws out the doormat to Camden's seconds at Hammond Stadium and are hoping for a victory under the law by writing his office in the federal building, Little Rock.

COTTON IN LOAN PROGRAM
New Orleans, Oct. 24 (AP) — Arkansas farmers have placed 3,874 bales of the 1951 cotton crop in the government's loan program.

Probers Seek More About RFC Loans

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP) — Senate investigators today asked to see RFC records on loan applications in which Vice President Barkley's secretary and a senate committee lawyer displayed interest.

W. Stuart Symington, administrator of the big lending agency, disclosed at a news conference that the request had just been received from the senate investigation subcommittee headed by Senator Hiram Boren (D-OK).

Asked whether the records would be made available to committee investigators, Symington said: "Sure."

Mrs. Flo Bratten, secretary to Barkley, and Charles E. Shaver, counsel to the senate small business committee, have both acknowledged making inquiries to the Reconstruction Finance corporation last year about the status of an application for a $1,000,000 loan for construction of a hotel in Miami, Fla. They denied any effort to influence action.

Mrs. Bratten had an engagement during the day to discuss the matter with Barkley.

Barkley previously has said he wanted "to get her side of the story." That was his response when asked if he intended to keep Mrs. Bratten as a secretary. She has worked for him almost 26 years.

The plump, gray-haired secretary told newsmen yesterday, after being questioned by senate investigators, that she had not attempted to exert influence and had

Snow, Cold Hits the Northwest

By The Associated Press

Snow and cold hit northwest states today but there was warmer weather on the way for the north central states.

Snow fell in Montana, western North Dakota and northern Wyoming. Lewiston, Mont., reported three inches of snow on the ground and a reading of 24 above.

The wet area extended into northern Nevada and southern Texas, which reported rain. Rain also fell in the northern New England states but it was generally fair in other parts of the country. Temperatures were expected to climb into the 70's in the Midwest today after several days of cool and rainy weather. It was on the cool side in the Ohio Valley and the Pacific Northwest and mild in the eastern and southern states. The mercury reached 80 at Tampa, Fla., yesterday, a record for the date.

Nothing wrong.

She said she had talked to Reconstruction Finance corporation directors, including former Chairman Harley Hise, merely to find out the status of the hotel loan application and not to urge its approval.

"I've been down to the RFC hundreds of times, the same as any secretary, to make inquiries" about loan applications pending before the huge government lending agency, Mrs. Bratten said.

Asked if she intended to retire or resign, she shook her head no. Mrs. Bratten was questioned behind closed doors by Francis D. Flanagan, chief counsel of the senate investigations subcommittee, after she interrupted a vacation to fly back here from her home in Kentucky.

On orders from Chairman Hiram Boren (D-OK), the subcommittee has undertaken a preliminary inquiry into the hotel loan and a $325,000 loan to the Mercury Record company of Chicago.

Besides Mrs. Bratten, Flanagan also questioned the counsel of the senate small business committee, Charles D. Shaver. Earlier Shaver had said he and Mrs. Bratten urged the RFC to approve both loans.

Egg Prices May Turn Downward

By The Associated Press

Egg prices leveled off this week and even turned downward in many places after weeks of pushing higher.

Reductions of a few cents a pound for chickens also were reported in a few large marketing areas. But other changes in retail food prices were largely confined to special promotions designed to attract shoppers.

Reductions in egg prices ranged to as much as four cents a dozen. Trade spokesmen said the drop may be only temporary because high meat prices are keeping demand for eggs high, and storage stocks are low.

On the fresh produce counters this week, housewives will find Brussels sprouts, carrots, lettuce, squash, sweet potatoes and grapes a little lower in most places. Some what higher: potatoes, spinach, prunes, pears and eggplant.

Produce men say there are plenty of pumpkins available this year—either for pies or for those Halloween jack-o'-lanterns.

Wholesale food prices this week were at the lowest average level so far this year, according to the Dun & Bradstreet food index. The index, in the sharpest drop since July, fell to $6.69 from last week's $6.77 and compared with $6.50 a year ago. This year's high was $7.31 on Feb. 20.

Rome, Oct. 24 (AP)—Almost 100 persons have been killed in violent storms raging throughout Italy.

The toll includes 71 who died in the southern province of Calabria and 15 killed when a gale destroyed their house in Catania, Sicily.

Iran to Get Sugar From Russia

Tehran, Iran, Oct. 23 (AP)—Iran, denied sugar from Britain, has signed an agreement to get it from Russia in exchange for Iranian cotton.

The agreement, signed yesterday, promises delivery of 2,000 tons of Soviet sugar. Arrangements are to be made later for 25,000 more tons of sugar which Russia recently promised Iran.

Britain banned shipment of critical and strategic materials to Iran last month when Iran completed nationalization of the British owned oil fields and chased the last British technicians out of the Abadan refinery.

Education Is Playing Big Part in TV

By JACK ADAMS
For James Marlow

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—One of the battles that has to be cleared before television is unfrozen is educational TV.

The matter is tied up tightly with the national channel allocation plan on which the federal communications commission (FCC) is now working preparatory to lifting the freeze early in 1952.

Thus, when the channels are definitely assigned, by cities, FCC must say finally what education is to get, and on what terms.

The commission tentatively ruled last March that about 10 per cent of all television space should be specifically reserved for schools desiring to build and operate strictly educational, non-commercial stations.

This plan would give educational institutions 209 of the approximately 2,000 local outlets envisioned for the nation.

Of the total school stations proposed, 82 could get channels in the very high frequency (VHF) band now in use and 127 would have channels in the proposed new ultra-high frequency (UHF) range, still to be opened up.

The school world generally protested this wasn't nearly enough, and especially not enough VHF. FCC Commissioner Fred B. Monrook said education should have 25 per cent of all channel space.

On the other hand, commercial television generally thinks it is more than ample. Everyone in this group thinks educational television is a fine thing but—

Some say there should be no set-aside at all, that the schools should compete on even terms with industry for the available channels.

Some say the schools should project education to the public through established commercial outlets.

Some say the educators will never get around to using all the channels proposed for them, and that any perpetual set-aside of these channels exclusively for school applicants would waste precious radio spectrum space.

Just how long the proposed reservation will run the commission has yet to decide.

The schools say it should be permanent, or at the very least over a great many years, so that the tax-supported institutions will have time to reorganize plans and get the necessary appropriations through legislatures.

Only one institution has actually applied for educational TV since this new branch of video was proposed. This is the Lindsey Hopkins Vocational School of Miami, Fla.

However, about 10 other schools or school agencies have given notice of firm plans to build stations promptly. These include the Connecticut education board; New York's board of regents, which is proposing an 11-station state network; the state of New Jersey, which contemplates it was given no educational allocation but wants six outlets; Ohio State university; Michigan State; University of Kansas; Kansas State; University of Houston, Texas; and the Houston independent school district; University of Wichita, Kansas; and Wayne University and the education board of Detroit.

More than two score other institutions have advised FCC they hope to get into the educational TV field sometime in the future.

Eight other schools have long had applications for regular commercial stations similar to WIO-TV, owned and operated commercially by Iowa State College at Ames. These are: Georgia Tech, Atlanta; Iowa State University at Iowa City; Lewis College of Science, Chicago; Loyola university, New Orleans; Northwestern Theological seminary, Minneapolis; St. Louis University, St. Louis, Mo.; Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.; and Harding College, Memphis, Tenn.

Assignments Holding Up Television

By JACK ADAMS
(For James Marlow)

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—The only thing now holding up additional television service for the country is the matter of making final local assignments of the available channels.

The distribution, to cities and towns throughout the United States, involves a stupendous engineering job if that function of all broadcast—interference—is to be avoided.

The work should be completed by February. Then the federal communications commission (FCC) will be able to lift the three-year-old freeze on new station plans.

The commission has already decided that about 12 channels will be required to provide a truly national television system.

To get that number it has gone "away uptown" in the radio spectrum, into the ultra high frequencies, to create 70 new VHF channels to be added to the 12 very high frequency (VHF) channels now in use.

It proposes to hold out B of the new channels as "reserves" for allocation, and assign the others finally to large and small communities across the nation.

Proposed in the final allocation, FCC last March made public a tentative table of proposed local assignments. It made provision for nearly 2,000 stations in about 1,200 communities as compared to the 400 stations in 140 locations that could be accommodated in the current 12-channel setup.

Of the proposed 2,000 outlets, FCC proposed to reserve about ten per cent exclusively for schools, desiring to sponsor non-commercial, educational operations.

The FCC plan was to hold public hearings on the tentative table, but the number of towns, schools and industry groups which asked time for witnesses indicated that it could hardly be taken, the hearing might last forever.

Hence it was decided to receive comment in writing only. Several hundred thousand words have thus far been filed and those interested have until late November to complete their written answer.

Mostly, these statements seek to more generous allocation of channels than FCC proposed, and a larger share in the limited VHF high frequency (VHF) channels now in use.

The most elaborate response came from the Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, which submitted a whole new allocation plan of its own.

DuMont contends its plan is more efficient, particularly in the distribution of VHF channels, and that its chart of possible transmitter locations would provide some 2,120 stations against FCC's 1,010.

Some 25 statements in opposition to the DuMont table have been received. Most of these say DuMont hasn't allowed enough mileage between stations, and that its plan gives too much VHF space to larger cities at the expense of smaller places.

The final allotments will probably combine some of DuMont's ideas, most of FCC's.

$192 Million Radar Setup Nearly Ready

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—The $205,000,000 radar system for warning of possible aerial attack against the United States is nearly completed, Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg said today.

The air force chief of staff told reporters the complex and far-flung detection system should be in full operation soon.

But, he indicated, it will take longer before all the units of new jet interceptor planes needed as a vital second part of the air defense system are ready. The first planes provided for under appropriations made two years ago are only now beginning to be delivered—a "lead time" required for the negotiation of contracts, the hiring of thousands of aircraft workers and the manufacture and installation in factories of the tools needed for mass production of the new planes.

Vandenberg said most of the equipment needed for the remaining radar stations in the network is ready, but that some installation work remains.

The warning and interceptor forces of the United States work in close liaison with those of Canada in the protection of the northern hemisphere against a surprise aerial strike by Russian bombers or paratroopers across the polar areas or the high latitudes of the Pacific or Atlantic oceans.

Air force experts point out, however, that the problem of establishing even a reasonably adequate radar warning system has been staggering because of the vast area involved in the Alaskan-Northern Canada-Greenland air approaches. The area involved is thirty times greater than England, which in World War II had the greatest concentration of radar and fighter plane defenses then known.

In the new North American radar network, a single station may cost as much as $5,000,000 and require 400 men to maintain and operate it. And dozens of such stations are needed for the arctic perimeter alone, not including special defense areas in the industrial sections of the U. S. and Canada.

Vandenberg said the network has the latest electronic equipment, but he noted that the range of radar pickup of aircraft is still limited by the earth's curvature, around which radar waves cannot bend.

In answer to another question, Vandenberg made it plain that the chance of using any of the super long range B-36 Consolidated Superfortresses in the Korean war, even for no more than a combat test of the big plane, is remote.

The B-36, the general said, "is our atom carrier" and there is no reason for trying it out in Korea where the strategic situation is entirely different from that for which it was designed. Korea is a small peninsula, he explained, whereas the strategic conception of the B-36 is for penetration at extreme ranges into a vast and remote country.

Moreover, appearance of a B-36 in Korean action would provide the enemy with a chance to learn the combat techniques used for the bomber. Vandenberg added that "we wouldn't learn much, but they would learn a lot, so why do it?"

The air chief also made it plain that the bomb line in Korea remains on the Yalu river boundary of Manchuria. He said, when asked if there had been any change, that "the sanctuary is still the sanctuary."

Foolish to Oppose World Russians Told

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—President Truman told the Russians today they are "utterly foolish" to oppose nations banded together to seek "peace and justice."

Speaking on the anniversary of the birth of the United Nations, the President declared:

"I hope the time will not be far distant when the leaders of the Soviet Union and their satellites will come to see that it is utterly foolish to oppose the united will of all the other peoples of the world for peace and justice."

"But so long as the forces of aggression are attacking the United Nations, there must be no weakening of our efforts to check aggression and to build up the defense of the free world."

"It is up to us here at home to back up these men of many nations who are fighting for us and for the freedom of the world in Korea."

The President spoke at the laying of the cornerstone for the building of a District of Columbia Red Cross chapter.

Mr. Truman devoted much of his talk to a plea for blood for the Red Cross banks.

"Men from (free) nations are out there in the hills of Korea risking their lives in the service of a great ideal. They are evidence, far more powerful than any speeches ever can be, that the idea of international justice under law—the idea of international cooperation to preserve peace and freedom—is taken root and is growing and spreading throughout the world, binding men together in new and greater bonds of brotherhood."

He said advances being made toward a system of international peace and justice "will prove to be worth all the sacrifice and effort which they are costing us and other nations."

He said one of the best ways for the public to support the men in Korea is to give blood through the Red Cross for the use of soldiers.

"The blood which is being given by our people here at home is saving cases which would have been considered hopeless not so long ago," Mr. Truman said. He told of one wounded soldier whose life was saved by 75 pints of blood and said the "demand for blood is tremendous."

Children in many homes of colonial America were not allowed to sit at the dinner table, but stood during the entire meal.

Snow Falls in Some Sections

By The Associated Press

Rain and snow pelted wide areas of the country today but it was pleasant October weather in the Atlantic coast states.

Heavy rainfalls doused the mid-continent. One wet belt extended from the eastern and central Great Lakes region southward to Kentucky and eastern Tennessee. Snow mixed with rain fell in parts of Wisconsin and northwestern Illinois. Snow also fell in the northern Rockies and rain hit parts of northern California and northern Nevada northward to Puget Sound.

Fair and mild weather was reported in the Atlantic coast states and the far Southwest. It was fair and cool in the northern plains and generally fair with temperatures near normal in other areas.

Temperatures were below freezing.

Handy's Cows— "Tired But Happy"

Handy Peterson is one person who really lives up to his name. Stopped by his fine-looking farm the other day and watched his cattle enjoying his latest brainstorm—a back-scratcher.

What Handy did was to cut an old tractor tire in half, then he slid the open ends over the tops of two posts set in the ground, holding the tire to the posts, making the inside edges come just about the height of a cow's back.

Handy's cattle-scratcher wasn't a very big idea—but he figures the happier his cows are the better. (And he'll probably get more milk from them, too!)

From where I sit, it's important to keep your eye on the little things. They add up. Reminds me of how beer retailers voluntarily co-operate with the Self-Regulation Program sponsored by the Brewing Industry. They keep their establishments clean, bright, and orderly right down to the last little thing... which all adds up to good will, and good business!

Fair Enough

New York, Oct. 24—If the people of the United States had decent standards they would not have been revolted against all exploitation of public office for private gain, all nepotism which is a euphemistic name for graft and has been practiced to a notorious degree by President Roosevelt and Truman, and most governors and mayors. "Tom Sawyer" being a distinguished exception—and all the other familiar variations of sin.

It is not a playful affection to object to sin in public life. On the contrary, it is a deplorable minimum requirement of public servants that they hold themselves to behavior which is not only in accord with the law but virtuous according to the decalog. Many men are not virtuous. An excellent illustration of that proposition was given by Father Daniel Ford, S. J., of St. Louis, under the title "Open letter to a boss." The "boss" was addressed actually was Truman, a political and fiscal profligate, Tom Sawyer, a dishonest character of shrewd outward piety who fooled the people, degraded and depleted their educational and municipal systems, took toll of the virtue of his regional neighbors' daughters in brotherly runs by his glorification, and so molded his progeny that we found Truman not only condoning graft but begetting the enormity of treason in his political household.

THE general's words were heard clearly in one of those strange hills which bloom in heavy rain. "We all know what we're heading into. Let's head into it like men. There's one force to help us now. May God bless us one and all." A terrible burst of Sioux fire came pouring into the delivery of his last words. With it the hostiles came surging in at its from every eighth of the compass. Only the short route up the hill behind us lay open. Spurring his horse in that direction, Custer shouted, "All right, men. Let's go!"

We didn't go far. The Sioux had a good general, too. It looked like we would make it. The Sioux below and flanking us didn't seem eager to come on in, contenting themselves with shadowing our retreat, firing from cover as they followed. Even so their fire was killing us, troopers dropping by twos and threes every yard of the way. Hot as the fire was and busy as we all were aiming and firing back and running, I still wondered what the devil was holding the Sioux back.

Fifty yards from the top of the hill Custer regrouped us. There were about 80 men remaining alive.

Tom Custer and Lieutenant Smith were on the slope below. Custer shot through the head, killed instantly. Smith, with his pistol shattered, struggling to drag himself up the slope by his hands. We couldn't cover him. I saw Cow Runner snake in like a ferret under the falling rifle smoke, seize Smith by the hair, with his knife into and around the head. I got a head on the Cheyenne but another burst of rifle fire rolled more smoke between us and when it cleared I could see Smith still moving, still groping blindly upward. But now he had no hair. Cow Runner had it. Cow Runner didn't have it long. I saw to that.

We now started on up the hill

In two companies, Custer commanding the first, I the second, Butler fighting with both. Not once did I see any trooper between the sergeant and the enemy.

We covered half the distance to the hilltop before it happened. I had just moved my men back through Custer's when I had a sudden impulse to turn and look up.

A LONE Sioux horseman stood lean and black against the sky-line. As I saw him, he threw up his arm in signal. A single, high call broke from his lips. It was a sound to curdle the courage in any white vein. Harsh, shrill, pulsating. The tribal war cry of the Oglaia Bad Face Band.

"Custer, look out!" I bawled down to the general.

Crazy Horse followed my words down the hill, 300 yelling Oglaia at his back.

Custer had the time it takes a racing Indian pony to cover 50 yards, to prepare his last defense. All any man could do, he did—kept levering shells into his carbine and firing them. I can hear his last given orders as clearly as though he were calling them as I write. Fire together, men. Don't break. Fire low. We'll make it. His unforgettable voice carried over the panic disorder which had seized our men at the appearance of Crazy Horse. They actually pulled together and stood to take the Oglaia charge.

Crazy Horse rode into us on the gallop, the momentum of the impact carrying the light down the hill. His warriors threw themselves from their ponies and the battle was instantly hand-to-hand. Knife flashed against knife, pistol against tomahawk, clubbed carbine against war ax and lance.

My memory of those two minutes is necessarily incomplete. You can't be tanning two guns, dodging war clubs, ducking axes, grabbing up fallen rifles and firing them, all the while leading a frightened cavalry horse, and still be making comprehensive tactical observations.

These things I remember, though: a crazed carnage, snatching the reins of Sergeant Butler's horse, swinging ahead the brute and galloping out through the Sioux lines. The Indian horde opening like a gaping red mouth to let him in. The poor devil throwing his rifle at his temple, blowing the side of his head out before the Indians could touch him. Image recording on my mind that we were now eight. Now six. Suddenly, three. Butler and Custer and I.

The general died first.

HOW history or the legend-makers will draw that death, God alone knows. Probably with yellow curls streaming, a run blazing in either hand, a defiant burst of laughter.

Well, if so, they won't be too far amiss. General Custer was on his horse at the last. A smother of Sioux fire cut man and beast down together, the horse falling sideways to his Custer's left leg beneath it. Butler and I started for him but a wave of Sioux cut us off.

Custer, still alive, twisted up to rest his pistol across his dead mount's withers. Crazy Horse and a shrieking lot of Oglaia rode over him.

They shot down into him. His pistol barrel wavered, plunged earthward. The finger on its trigger stiffened. Custer's last shot plowed into the dirt. He didn't hear his sound.

Two Sioux braves seized him, wrenching the lifeless body from under the horse. A third sprang in, knotting his left hand in the thick yellow curls. Up went the scalping knife.

A rifle shot cracked. The knife was spinning crazily out of the warrior's shattered hand. A putural voice boomed angrily. "Respect him. This is a holy scalp lock."

I saw Crazy Horse beyond Custer's horse, thin blue smoke still wisping from his rifle.

Mrs. Rosenberg Visits Front in Korea

Somewhere in Korea, Oct. 24 (AP)—Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, assistant secretary of defense, today visited the front and assured fighting men that no man in combat will spend a second winter in Korea, except a few technicians difficult to replace.

Mrs. Rosenberg referred to the situation of men who have been in Korea approximately a year. There is no doubt that the war wouldn't be a second winter.

She also said category four of the inactive reservists involved in the war would be released after 17 months.

"The law requires these officers to be released, and we are going to live up to that," Mrs. Rosenberg said.

She told a group of combat soldiers that they were going to be kept in Korea 12 months.

Mrs. Rosenberg looked up at him to serve him as trained pole-vaulters to defame his opponents. It has been a deliberate, unconscionable betrayal of the editorial responsibility of men who would be the last to claim they were too ignorant to know better.

One hour whines that the newspaper business is sick. Editors in doubt, solemnly conclude ask why they don't need economists and lawyers to tell them why. Let them look at their papers.

Dr. Sander Barred From Hospital

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 24 (AP)—Dr. Benjamin N. Sander, the small-town physician whose murder trial last year won world attention, failed last night to regain the right to treat patients in Hillsborough county, a non-denominational hospital.

His application for re-admission to the county medical association was denied by a vote of 36 to 43. A court of the reformed lay thirds majority of the number voting.

The action was dropped from membership the 42-year-old Sander, N. H., general practitioner after he was charged with taking the life of Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, 39, of Manchester.
